Dawn Alley, PhD, presenter, is the Director of the Prevention and Population Health Group at the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) and oversees multiple innovative payment models designed to improve quality and reduce costs through population health approaches. Prior to joining CMMI in 2014, Dr. Alley served as a Senior Advisor in the Office of the Surgeon General, where she led implementation of the National Prevention Survey. She served as a Faculty Member of the University of Maryland School of Medicine prior to entering Federal service. Dr. Alley is a recognized expert in population health, with more than 50 peer-reviewed publications.

Dr. Alley earned a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Gerontology from the University of Southern California and completed a Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Population Health at the University of Pennsylvania.

Stephen Cha, MD, presenter, is a practicing Board Certified Primary Care Physician and serves as the Director for the State Innovation Group at the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) since 2011. Dr. Cha oversees the State Innovation Model and unique state based models in Maryland, Vermont, and Pennsylvania. Under these payment and delivery transformations, he has partnered with states in broad based efforts to connect payment incentives to population health improvements. Prior to joining CMMI, Dr. Cha served as the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) for the Center on Medicaid and CHIP Services.

Dr. Cha earned a Doctor of Medicine degree from Brown University School of Medicine.

Kimberly Rawlings, MPP, developer, has been employed as a Health Insurance Specialist for the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) since May 2014. Ms. Rawlings has been organizing Grand Rounds sessions for continuing medical education (CME) and continuing education (CE) credit since February 2016. In addition to this work, she leads the Measures Management System (MMS) and focuses on revitalizing the principles of standardization, innovation, and accessibility in the MMS and engaging stakeholders in the measure development process. Her previous experience includes serving as the Program Manager, working on outreach and program evaluation at a large Baltimore based non-profit organization.

Ms. Rawlings earned a Master of Public Policy degree from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Joshua Sharfstein, MD, presenter, is a Physician and the current Vice Dean for Public Health Practice and Community Engagement at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Dr. Sharfstein oversees the Office of Public Health Practice and Training, the General Preventive Medicine Residency, and major practice activities, including collaboration with public health agencies. He also holds a faculty appointment in the Department of Health Policy and Management. He served as the Secretary of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene from 2011 through 2014. He served as the Principal Deputy Commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) until January 2011. Prior to joining the FDA, Dr. Sharfstein served as the Health Commissioner of Baltimore, Maryland and helped establish global hospital budgeting in Maryland.

Dr. Sharfstein earned a Doctor of Medicine degree from the Harvard University Medical School.

Ellen-Marie Whelan, PhD, NP, RN, presenter, joined the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) as a Senior Advisor at the Innovation Center in 2011, where she coordinates the Pediatric portfolio across the Innovation Center. Dr. Whelan has also served as the Chief Population Health Officer for the Center for Medicaid and CHIP Services (CMCS) since 2015. In both positions, she works on the design, implementation and testing of delivery system transformation and payment reform initiatives. Before joining CMS, Dr. Whelan was the Associate Director of Health Policy at the Center for American Progress. Her research and publications focused the development and passage of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act with a focus on system delivery and payment reform, primary care, and health workforce policy.

Dr. Whelan worked as a Health Services Researcher and Faculty Member at the University of Pennsylvania and Johns Hopkins University. She worked as a practicing Nurse Practitioner for over a decade in a variety of primary care settings, including an adolescent primary care clinic in West Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Whelan earned a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Health Policy and a Master of Science degree in Nursing with a Nurse Practitioner specialization from the University of Pennsylvania. She also completed a Post-Doctoral Fellowship at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health in Primary Care Policy.
