CMS Announces Historic Changes to Physician Self-Referral Regulations

On November 20, CMS finalized changes to outdated federal regulations that have burdened health care providers with added administrative costs and impeded the health care system’s move toward value-based reimbursement. The Physician Self-Referral Law, also known as the “Stark Law,” generally prohibits a physician from making referrals to an entity for certain health care services if the physician has a financial relationship with the entity. The old federal regulations that interpret and implement this law were designed for a health care system that reimburses providers on a Fee-for-Service basis, where the financial incentives are to deliver more services. However, the 21st century American health care system is increasingly moving toward financial arrangements that reward providers who are successful at keeping patients healthy and out of the hospital, where payment is tied to value rather than volume.

Policy Will Increase Number of Lifesaving Organs by Holding OPAs Accountable through Transparency and Competition

On November 20, CMS finalized a rule that is designed to increase the supply of lifesaving organs available for transplant in the United States by requiring that the organizations responsible for organ procurement be transparent in their performance, highlighting the best and worst performers, and requiring them to compete on their ability to successfully facilitate transplants.

Prescription Drug Payment Model to Put American Patients First

In support of President Trump’s historic commitment to lowering drug prices for American patients, HHS Secretary Alex Azar announced a drug payment model through the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation at CMS that will lower Medicare Part B payments for certain drugs to the lowest price for similar countries and save American taxpayers and beneficiaries more than $85 billion over seven years.

Interoperability and Patient Access Final Rule Call — December 9
Wednesday, December 9 from 1:30 to 3 pm ET

Register for this Medicare Learning Network event.

On May 1, CMS released the Interoperability and Patient Access final rule, listing ways to give patients better access to their health information. Using data exchange through secure Application Programming Interfaces (APIs), we took a first step in making health information more available to patients and moving toward greater interoperability across the health care system. This approach to data exchange will allow patients to make informed decisions and reduce burden on payers and providers.

During this call, we’ll answer your questions about implementing these policies:

- Public reporting and information blocking – targeting late 2020/early 2021
- Provider digital contact information in the National Plan and Provider Enumeration System – targeting March, 2021
- Revisions to the Conditions of Participation (CoPs) of for hospitals and critical access hospitals – effective April 30, 2021
- Patient Access API – enforced after July 1, 2021
- Provider Directory API – enforced after July 1, 2021
- Payer-to-payer data exchange – effective January 1, 2022
- Improving the dual eligible experience – effective April 1, 2022

Visit the Interoperability webpage for more information about the final rule and to find resources.

Target Audience: All Medicare Fee-for-Service providers, payers, and industry-wide stakeholders.
