I. GENERAL INFORMATION

A. Background: CMS has been working with the Office of Inspector General (OIG) on the tracking and reporting on the return of self-identified overpayments.

Regulation 42 CFR 401.305 states that when a government agency informs a provider or supplier of a potential overpayment, the provider or supplier has an obligation to accept the finding or make a reasonable inquiry to determine whether an overpayment exists. The provider or supplier must then report and return any self-identified overpayments received within the last six years (from paid claim date) as required by Section 1128J(d) of the Act (Section 6402 of the Affordable Care Act).

There are a number of methods that the regulation provides for persons to return any self-identified overpayments ranging from provider-initiated claims adjustments, to sending a check and/or claim listing, to negotiating an extended repayment plan. Depending on which method of return is chosen, CMS' systems may not be able to associate the self-identified overpayment to the specific audit itself. As a result, CMS cannot currently associate the recovery of the overpayment with a specific OIG audit.

B. Policy: CMS is requesting analysis to evaluate methods to track and report on the return of self-identified overpayments in CMS' claim processing systems.
